SHOOK

HOUSES THAT WERE FIFTY MILES AWAY.

Nitro-Glycerine Let Go This Morning at Marion, Ind.

THE BUSINESS BLOCKS

Rocked as if By an Earthquake --- Yawning Hole Where 15000 Quarts Exploded.

Marion, Ind., Jan. 15.—Fifteen hundred quarts of nitro-glycerine stored in two magazines in a ravine two and a half miles south-east of this city exploded about 1:30 o'clock this morning, shaking the entire north-eastern part of the state. Business blocks and dwelling houses shook as if rocked by an earthquake, and the entire city was aroused. A yawning hole in the bottom of the ravine is all that is left. The theory is that the explosion was caused by a gas jet in the St. Mary magazine setting fire to the building. So far as is known no one was injured. Houses were shaken fifty miles away. The shock was felt at Ft. Wayne, Winchester, Muncie, Anderson and many other cities.

Hartford City, Ind., Jan. 15.—The nitro-glycerine explosion this morning at Marion, 20 miles away, was felt very noticeably in this city, houses being shaken and in some cases window glass was shattered. The entire city was awakened.

IMPORTANT

Witness in the Trial of James Howard Alleged Goebel Suspect Has Disappeared.

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 15.—The chief interest in the trial of James Howard, the alleged Goebel suspect, was the disappearance of Wesley Whitaker of Clay county, who came here to testify for the commonwealth. Whitaker spent the night here, but left on an early morning train, and efforts to locate him have been unsuccessful. It is said Whitaker would have testified that he saw Howard the night before he came to Frankfort, and that his testimony would show whether Howard wore a mustache at that time. This is an important issue in the case. The prosecution claims that Whitaker's disappearance is due to intimidation, and it is said that he went to Indiana.

On Trial For Murder.

Newport, N. H., Jan. 15.—George H. Briggs, an elderly, prosperous farmer of Langdon, was placed on trial charged with the murder of Mrs. Florence Jones, a neighbor. Two witnesses were children of the murdered woman. Cleveland Jones, 16, said that on Nov. 2, while in a field driving some stray cattle, Briggs, who also was there, accused him of frightening the cattle. They called each other names, and Briggs threatened to shoot the whole Jones family. Later Briggs appeared at the Jones home with a revolver. When Mrs. Jones went to the door Briggs shot her. Annie Jones, 14, corroborated her brother's testimony.

SCENE

WHEN ESTES RATHBONE WAS CONFRONTED.

Dramatic Incident in the Trial at Havana.

REEVES REPEATS STORY

Was Willing to Swear That Rathbone Told Him Neely Arranged to Burn Stamps.

Havana, Jan. 15.—The examination of Estes G. Rathbone, formerly director general of posts of Cuba, was continued when the trial of the charges growing out of the Cuban postage frauds was resumed. Private correspondence between Rathbone and former Postmaster General Smith was introduced. Rathbone said he did not take part in any campaign having for its purpose his appointment as civil governor of Cuba. Some overzealous friends began one, he said, but he did not endorse it, and wrote to the president and postmaster general saying he did not want the position. The government introduced Charles F. Neely's letter with a petition to the president asking for the appointment of Rathbone. Rathbone said he did not know of its existence until six weeks ago.

A dramatic incident of the trial was the confronting of Rathbone with Reeves, regarding the statement Reeves alleges Rathbone made after the latter's return to the United States in November, 1889, and two months after the stamps were burned. When Reeves took the stand Rathbone was sitting opposite him. Reeves said that Rathbone told him that Neely had arranged the matter of the burning of the surcharged stamps, so that fraud would not be discovered. Rathbone here asked Reeves if he was willing to swear to this statement. Reeves replied, "yes," to which Rathbone said, "God help you."

AMERICANS

Arrested Without Cause by Russian Officers, Reports U. S. Consul Henry B. Miller.

Pekin, Jan. 15.—Henry B. Miller, U. S. consul at New Chwang, reports that Russian authorities at that place are arresting American officers and sailors without cause. U. S. Minister Conger is investigating. Little over a week ago there were street fights at New Chwang between the Russian soldiers and sailors from the U. S. gunboat Vicksburg. These clashes in all probability have something to do with the reported arrests.

TRIAL

Of Adams Speaker of the House in Michigan Begins—Charged With Bribe Taking.

Mason, Mich., Jan. 15.—The trial of Edgar I. Adams, speaker of the house of the Michigan legislature of 1899, charged with taking a bribe, began before Judge Howard Wiest in the Ingham circuit court. It is alleged that Charles H. Pratt, agent of the West Publishing company of St. Paul, tried to secure the passage of a joint resolution through the legislature to have each county in the state supplied with the reports published by his company; that $20,000 was deposited in the First National bank of St. Paul to be used as a corruption fund, and that against this deposit Pratt drew two checks of $5,000 each and five of $2,000 each. Land Commissioner French, it is alleged, received $14,000 and Speaker Adams $6,000 to be used in putting the deal through.

Don't Want "Uncle Tom's Cabin." Louisville, Jan. 15.—Continuing the opposition to the playing of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," which was begun by the Lexington chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy requesting the manager of the Lexington opera house to not allow the play from Mrs. Stowe's book to be presented there, the Albert Sidney Johnston chapter of Louisville began a movement to petition the Kentucky legislature to prohibit the presentation of the play in this state. A committee, Democratic senators believe the Democrats of the House did not make their opposition to the measure anything like vigorous enough when it was under discussion in that body. The minority senators are therefore bent on discussing at length every phase of the questions involved in the imposition of a tariff against the Philippines, so that the Democratic position may be made entirely clear to the country.

Colonel Jones of Arkansas, the Democratic floor leader, is preparing a long set speech on the subject, but in addition to delivering this he will occupy much time from day to day during the debate in discussing various phases of the whole Philippine question as they present themselves.

In the state senate today Senator Archer introduced a bill to appropriate $200,000 for representation of Ohio at the St. Louis exposition in '04. It provides for the appointment of a commission of fifteen by the Governor.

LIGHT SENTENCE

Given Chipp an Old Clerk Who Admitted That He Stole $30,000 From New York City.

New York, Jan. 15.—Clas. T. Chipp an old clerk in the Comptroller's office, who stole $30,000 from the city and pleaded guilty, received only a light sentence this morning. With good behavior Chipp will probably be imprisoned only for a year. Chipp has lived a double life for some years and stole, he said himself, to keep both women.

DEMAND

BY WESTERN REPUBLICANS THAT RECIPROCITY.

BE ACCORDED FILIPINOS IN TARIFF POLICY

HOUSE BILL TO BE AMENDED

Before it Passes the Senate, Where It Will be Discussed for Several Weeks.

Washington, Jan. 15.—Twenty-five per cent reduction from the Dingley bill rates will be allowed on Philippine products coming to the United States, it now seems probable, in the amended House Philippine tariff bill when it is reported to the Senate the latter part of this week. The Senate-Philippine committee have had the proposition to make the above tariff concession on imports from the archipelago under discussion, and the indications are that it will be finally agreed to and the House bill thus amended favorably reported to the Senate.

The chief motive of the Senate Republicans in making the 25 per cent concession to the Philippines will be to avoid the criticism which would be leveled at them if their Philippine tariff bill maintained full Dingley rates against the people of the archipelago, while granting better terms to the people of Cuba. Such a discrimination against the unfortunate Filipinos would not only be sharply criticized by the Democrats during the prolonged debate which will follow the report of the bill to the Senate, but would in all probability be resented by a large element in the Republican party as manifestly unjust and even oppressive.

This feeling would be especially strong on the Pacific coast, where the greatest anxiety exists for the speedy pacification of the archipelago in the belief that the restoration of peace will be followed by a great development of commerce between the Philippines and that section.

Many of the Pacific coast representatives in Congress favor practical free trade with the islands as the surest way to build up a greater trade with them and to meet the demands of these Republicans some tariff concessions to the Filipinos will have to be made.

It will be many weeks before the Philippine tariff bill passes the Senate, no matter in what form it comes to that body from Senator Lodge's committee. Democratic senators believe the Democrats of the House did not make their opposition to the measure anything like vigorous enough when it was under discussion in that body. The minority senators are therefore bent on discussing at length every phase of the questions involved in the imposition of a tariff against the Philippines, so that the Democratic position may be made entirely clear to the country.

Colonel Jones of Arkansas, the Democratic floor leader, is preparing a long set speech on the subject, but in addition to delivering this he will occupy much time from day to day during the debate in discussing various phases of the whole Philippine question as they present themselves.

It is expected that fully two-thirds of the Democratic senators will make speeches of considerable length before the debate commences. If this occurs the debate will be realized it can be seen that the session will close before a vote can be obtained on the Philippine tariff bill.

FORAKER

Goes Back to the U. S. Senate.

He was Officially Declared Elected Today.

HONOR ACKNOWLEDGED

In a Speech---Reception and a Love Feast Followed Ballot at Columbus Today.

COLUMBUS, Jan. 15.—Foraker's speech of acceptance of the Senatorial honor today was full of suggestions on national questions. He said the great industrial problem at this time is how to go on collecting stupendous balances of trade in our favor without bankrupting the rest of the world and destroying the customers we have acquired. He closed with this tribute: "Not only as a great president but as a gentleman and the most lovable type of humanity is the place in history that will always be held by President McKinley." In comparing Roosevelt with McKinley he said: "Theodore Roosevelt may be less patient and more aggressive, but in an intellectual endowment in scholarly culture, in broadminded Americanism, integrity of character and in patriotic purpose, he has never been excelled by any occupant of the White House."

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 15.—Senator Joseph Benson Foraker today was officially declared elected to the United States Senate for the term beginning March 4, 1903. At 11 a. m. the general assembly met in joint session and canvassed the vote cast on Tuesday by the house and senate. Every Republican in the senate and house cast his vote for the return of the senior senator. The minority cast its full vote for Charles W. Baker of Cincinnati. A committee was appointed to notify Senator Foraker of his election and later he was escorted to the chamber, his appearance being the signal for tumultuous applause. In a neat speech the senator said he had come to Columbus simply to acknowledge the debt he owed the people of Ohio to their representatives in the legislature. An impromptu reception followed, the members of the general assembly seizing the opportunity to grasp the newly-elected senator's hand. He will return to Washington this evening.

The name of Senator Foraker was presented in the senate by Mr. Hardin of Marion, and in the house by Mr. Willis of Hardin. Senator Royer and Mr. Brumbaugh nominated Mr. Baker in their respective houses. All of the nominating speeches were eloquent to a degree.

MOB FAILED

In Its Effort This Morning to Get Chas. Gaskins—Stormed Jail at Mayville, Ky.

MAYVILLE, Ky., Jan. 15.—A mob stormed the Flemingsburg jail at early hour this morning. The door was broken open and the windows smashed. A dynamite bomb was thrown but it struck on the soft ground. The guard who rushed from the jail to pick up the bomb was shot. The mob was after Charles Gaskins, who killed James Ryan but did not succeed in getting into the jail.

Governor Brigham this morning ordered out a Franklin Ky. company of the Lexington National Guard to Flemingsburg, where an attempt was made this morning to lynch the Negro accused of assault Sheriff passed without a dissenting voice. The House today resumed discussion of the pension application bill in son's dead body on the floor. He had evidently stood before the mirror and deliberately shot himself. He left no note explaining his action.

ARRIVAL

Of Prince Henry is Scheduled For February 18—The President Interested in Plans.

Washington, Jan. 15.—Herr Von Holleben of the German embassy this morning received a cablegram officially announcing the forthcoming visit to this country of Prince Henry. The Prince will leave Bremen on the Iron Prinz Wilhelm February 22nd, and will remain in the United States until March 8th.

Washington, Jan. 15.—Cable advices received at the German embassy here indicate that Prince Henry of Germany will arrive at New York about Feb. 18. While Dr. Von Holleben, the German ambassador, has not yet been advised fully as to the details of Prince Henry's visit to this country, it is the opinion of the embassy of officials that the stay of the royal visitor in the United States will not exceed a fortnight. The voyage of the imperial yacht Hohenzollern will be so timed that the vessel will arrive off New York in season to join the steamer which will bring Prince Henry, so that he may board the yacht and then proceed on to be met by the reception fleet of naval vessels and steamers which will escort the Hohenzollern into New York harbor. The president is showing a great deal of interest in the arrangements for Prince Henry's reception, and he himself called the matter up in cabinet.

CANAL DOVER, O., Jan. 15.—Three masked men bound and gagged the night watchman of the Tuscarawas Electric company, blew the safe but got only a trifling amount and escaped. The watchman was found as stated this morning.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Jan. 15.—Burglars made an unsuccessful effort this morning to rob the safe in the First National bank, Pitcarin, at 3 o'clock. Dynamite was used in so great quantity that the outer doors of the vault were blown from their hinges and the building was wrecked. The inside doors of the safe held firm however, and the $2,000 behind the steel doors was undisturbed. The explosion awoke nearly everybody in the town. The bank occupies its new building this afternoon.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., Jan. 15.—Four blacksmen this morning blew open the postoffice safe at Spring Lake and secured about $700 worth of stamps and a small amount of money. The robbers escaped.

Historic House Burns.

BOSTON, Jan. 15.—The historic mansion of John Hancock of Revolutionary fame, in a fire last night was completely ruined inside, and many valuable relics, curios and paintings were destroyed.

MARCHIONESS

It is Who is Suing Russell Sage the Multimillionaire for $75,000 Damages.

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—Mme. Isabella D'Ajuria who is suing Russell Sage, the aged millionaire for $75,000 for alleged assault way back in 1884, is a marchioness. She is the widow of Marquis Gregori Dajuria of Madrid. Mme Dajuria is a renowned painter of miniature photographs. She once painted Russell Sage's portrait charging him $500 therefor.

No Money in Sight.

LONDON, Jan. 15.—The breach of promise suit brought by Miss Portia Knight, the actress, against the Duke of Manchester, which was announced yesterday to have been settled out of court, now threatens to come to trial. Miss Knight says she has not yet received the Duke's money and that if she does not receive it before tonight, the case will proceed.

FACTORIES

HAD TO SEND MEN HOME AS CITY WATER PIPES WERE FILLED WITH ICE—NO WATER.

DUNKIRK, N. Y., Jan. 15.—Owing to the slush of ice getting into the intake pipe of the city's water supply, effectively stopping the flow, this city has been without water supply since midnight. All the big manufacturing plants including Brooks Locomotive company employing 5,000 hands sent their men home for the day. How long this state of affairs will last cannot now be conjectured.

PORTSMOUTH SUICIDE.

CINCINNATI, O., Jan. 15.—George B. Anderson, proprietor of a department store at Portsmouth, was found dead in his room at the Palace hotel yesterday afternoon. Not appearing, the manager sent a boy to look through the transom. He discovered Anderson lying on the floor. He had son's dead body on the floor. He had evidently stood before the mirror and deliberately shot himself. He left no note explaining his action.

BRYAN IN NEW ENGLAND.

Mr. Bryan met with a kindly and cordial welcome in his public addresses in New England last week, amid the "academic groves" as in the manufacturing centres. He spoke on non-partisan questions, but still on issues that largely concern the American people. The Springfield "Republican," not a supporter but a radical opponent of Mr. Bryan's currency ideas in the last two National campaigns, says he was "in splendid form" at his address at Holyoke, Mass., on Friday, "holding with ease the closest attention of a large audience for two solid hours." The "Republican" adds:

The address contained much wholesome doctrine. His oratory can best be appreciated when his voice is in perfect condition. Probably most people have heard him in political campaigns when his speaking has been more or less husky from excessive efforts. When in a normal state Mr. Bryan's vocal organ is a superb instrument of speech, and the orator is rarely gifted by nature who combines voice and physical presence as he does. He is now at the full maturity of his powers, although as a presidential candidate he is entirely a man with a past rather than a man with a future. Still, those who heard him last evening could scarcely avoid the feeling that Mr. Bryan is likely to remain, in some form, a considerable force among that portion of the American people who have adhered to the Democratic party."

BRITISH TAXES.

The British parliament opens this week, in what may prove an eventful session. Its early part will be taken up with the King's coronation, and after that must come the levy of fresh taxes, or new loans to meet the continued war expenses. The London "Times" suggests increased taxes on tea and coffee, and the imposition of taxes at the customs house on petroleum and timber. These are all duties "for revenue only." The same cannot be said of its recommendation of a reimposition of a duty on wheat. That would raise a revenue, it is true, but it would at the same time be a measure of incidental protection to the British farmers and is one they have been urging at their agricultural meetings for several years, though with little hope of success. The London "Telegraph" goes further in its forecast of the coming proposition of the chancellor of the exchequer and suggests the possibility of a small tax on all imports.

PURITY.

IN A TREADMILL.

[Original]

It is the same old place. The only change is in the trees, which have grown from young timber to a splendid height. The pond, the dam, the mill, are all as they were, except that the mill is dilapidated and most of the roof gone and now the machinery is silent. This mill will surely "never grind again" from waters that are past," nor would I have it carry me through that scene so terrible of twenty years ago when I was twenty, but I knew that my strength would give out in time. I cast a despairing glance about for some means to change the situation. Then for the first time I noticed a broken piece of scatting which possibly I might detect and use for a lever to stop the wheel.

"Can you walk on for a few moments, Cecily?" I asked.
"Yes; I have had a good rest."

I put her down and, clinging to the side of the wheel, grasped the scatting. Never before or since have I put forth such force—a force that no man can exert except to save life. The timber yielded, and in another minute I had thrust it through the side of the wheel and rested its end against the edge of a stone wall. The wheel was stopped. Then Cecily came to me, put her arms about me and wept.

In a few moments the miller was looking down upon us to discover what had stopped his wheel. Cecily cried out through her tears, "It takes big fish to stop a mill-wheel!"

The astonished man gave her a hand, and with me below to help she was soon on the dry platform. I followed, and there came a flood of gratitude that I had been permitted to save myself and Cecily from a horrible death.

I wanted Cecily to visit the old mill with me, but she shuddered and said that the children needed all her time.

HUMPHREY BARNICKEL.*A TRANSIT OF VENUS.

How It Was Observed by a Party of German Astronomists.

On their way between Teheran and Taboran the members of an expedition to Persia by the German government to observe the transit of Venus and a solitary European lady riding in the opposite direction, a member of the English colony, who was as clever as she was beautiful. Having been long a resident in Persia, she was fearless riding alone a long way ahead of her caravan. The Germans marveled at such an apparition in such a dreary waste—wondered she wasn't afraid. Wouldn't she let some of them stand by until her servants and baggage came up? No, she was quite at ease, and usually in her travels was far ahead of her attendants, whose mules, more heavily laden, could not keep her pace.

"And now, gentlemen," she said, "who are you, and where are you bound for?" They introduced each other. One was the astronomer, another the photograher, another the astrologist, the naturalist, and so on, and they were going to Isfahan to observe the transit of Venus. The lady smiled, started her pony and waved her adieu, saying:

"To observe the transit of Venus." Ah, well, you can go home now, gentlemen! Your duty is done. Goodby."

The fair vision disappeared at a corner toward the horizon and it was said that the Germans did not see the sun for a long time after Venus had disappeared from their lens. Late of Major General Sir Robert Murdoch Smith, K. C. M. G.

Remarkable Confidential Letter Alleged to Have Been Written by Russian Minister Throws Light on Czar's Policy—Why He Keeps Manchuria—Talk of Wolves and Tigers.

According to advices received at Victoria, B. C., from Kai Feng Fu by the steamer Empress of Japan, a conference was held there before the Chinese court started for Peking with Prince Ching, at which the Chinese statesman submitted to the empress dowager the suggestions of the representatives of Great Britain and the United States at Peking, says the Philadelphia Public Ledger. The ministers asked that the heir apparent, Pu Chun, be disinherited; Yung Lu to be kept from the Chinese court; Tung Fu Hsiang be decapitated and that the so-called regency of the empress dowager be abolished and the emperor restored to position. Fearing to present these suggestions to the empress, Prince Ching demurred for some time, but finally put forward the suggestions, and the empress dowager at once agreed to depose Pu Chun and execute Tung Fu Hsiang, but would not agree to remove Yung Lu from her council or resign her regency.

Tung Fu Hsiang is said to be beyond the reach of the empress dowager, being at Kwangtu, where he is engaged in forming an army to invade north China. Yung Lu still retains his position as grand councilor, and M. Lesser, the Russian minister, has been making strenuous efforts to secure his appointment as plenipotentiary to settle the Manchurian question.

The Tung Wen Hu Po publishes the confidential letter addressed to Grand Councilor Yung Lu by M. Lesser immediately after the death of Li Hung Chang. The document is said to have been obtained from Japanese sources and is as follows:

"As your excellency is doubtless aware, the territories of our two countries are in touch with each other, and among foreign countries Russia is the nearest neighbor of China from a geographical point of view. Everything that affects the interests of one fully affects those of the other."

"In consequence of this Russia has always looked forward to that day when China may be prosperous and powerful. Unfortunately the Boxer disturbance broke out last year, and all the foreign powers took advantage of the occasion to send their hostile armies into China. Though we tried to refrain from participating in the expedition, it was in vain. We labored most strenuously to persuade the allied forces to evacuate Peking as soon as the legations had been relieved."

"Subsequently when the Japanese attempted to snatch the power of policing the city of Peking from the hands of the Chinese authorities we stood obstinately in their way, and so their unreasonable attempts were frustrated."

"When all the allied powers joined together in dictating to China the punishments of those Chinese officials who were suspected by them of having countenanced the Boxers, we exerted every effort to get as many officials exempted from punishment as possible in order to protect the dignity of your country. It is needless to say that it was entirely due to that strong and persistent opposition that your excellency was not included in the list. We have tried and done everything in our power to protect the interests of China, and it is for this reason that we have earned the implacable hatred of all the other powers. He, the late Li Hung Chang, was a very farsighted and able statesman, who had always been on friendly terms with us because he knew that Russia was the only true friend of China."

"Ah!" exclaimed Mr. Wanamaker.

"That is the answer, for it embraces all the others." In a really eloquent speech the former cabinet member pointed out that the love of the Redeemer was the idealization of all Christianity and eulogized the spirit which had prompted the answer. Finally, after well rounded oration, which would have done honor to any pulpit or clergyman, Mr. Wanamaker turned to the boy and requested his name.

"My name," came the proud reply, "was Levi Guggenheim."

The Philadelphia papers contained a report the next morning stating that John Wanamaker was seriously indisposed.

Much Less Than Half the Cost

That some sort of an Encyclopedia is a necessity all must acknowledge. That the great Britannica is the best no one will deny. It is an Encyclopedia in which each principal subject is treated by an acknowledged authority upon that subject. No other Encyclopedia has given $10,000 for a single article, nor $600 a page for written matter. The fact that $3,000,000 were expended in its preparation, requiring the labor of 2,000 of the world's greatest scholars—tells the story of its exalted superiority.

31 Volumes in All,
25 Volumes Edinburgh Edition,
5 Volumes American Additions.
i Volume Guide to Systematic Readings of the whole work.

IT CONTAINS:
16,500 articles, averaging 1½ pages
each.
3,300 articles written and signed by specialists, of 142 per volume.
16,255 pages compiled by special contributors, forming four-tenths of the entire work.
828 full-page engraved plates, containing over 900 separate illustrations.
675 maps and plans, including 237 colored maps.
Nearly 12,000 illustrations, exclusive of maps and plans.

Special Features of the Five Volumes American Additions.

1. An extension of the original articles on the arts and sciences down to the present day.

2. Introduction of new topics either arising from the differentiation of new departments of sciences (as Ecology, Sense-Organ, etc.), or from discoveries and invention (as Tesla's Oscillator, Argon, Roentgen Rays, etc.)

3. Biographical enlargement to include eminent living persons and the hundreds who have recently won distinction.

4. A particular survey of American interests in their various phases.

5. A presentation of technical subjects in form comprehensible to ordinary readers, as in the treatment of Electricity, Morphology, etc.

6. Copious illustrations, over 1,500 in number.

The Guide to Systematic Readings Subdivides the whole work into departments in accordance with the different occupations of all the peoples (outlining 75 different courses of reading) and points out the things you may want to know or ought to know about your business or profession. Furthermore it makes systematic reading along any line practical.

It was 12 o'clock when the doctor hastily entered the room with Prince Almehach's card in his hand and, rushing up to his "secret transparency," burst forth:

"Ah, prince, pardon this unfortunate blunder! This stupid son of Erin should have given me your card at once. Instead of that, he placed it on a side table. I perceived it only a moment ago when I went there to get an instrument. Come into my consulting room at once."

The prince followed the doctor and, upon being seated, was invited to state the object of his call. When he had done so, the doctor said:

"This is very unfortunate. I fear my tongue got away with me. However, I presume I must give the count satisfaction. But I must ask a slight delay. I have been telegraphed to attend a meeting of the imperial family at Vienna; of course his imperial highness would not permit me to divulge his name, and I will take great pleasure in satisfying the count on my return—that is, if he will not accept an apology."

The prince was so pleased at the doctor's cordial reception and so impressed with his professional importance that he volunteered to do what he could to effect a settlement.

Upon leaving the cafe the evening before Dr. Igelhart had gone to the office of a small newspaper patronized almost exclusively by the aristocracy and inserted the following advertisement:

"Upon calling at No. ——strange any person of good education will be put into possession of the means of earning a thousand marks a year without being known in the field of labor. Only members of titled families need apply."

The aristocrats who applied the next morning did not care to tell what they had called for, all preferring to admit that they were suffering from a diseased liver and that they had come to the great specialist for treatment.

The doctor proposed to make them agents on commission for a microbe killer, an offer they all declined.

Upon Dr. Igelhart's return from Vienna he brought in concealment in a neighboring village, he at once communicated with Prince Almehach and received a card from his "secret transparency," who intimated that Dr.

Igelhart's apology would be accepted

if he chose to take one. The doctor apologized and the incident became known to the publicizing publicity of Berlin. Consequently Dr. Igelhart stepped into a series of practice instead of returning to Africa after finishing his studies. He pursued these studies and his practice together. There is no doubt in Berlin who the man is rities of Berlin.

ASA BROWN DALLETT.

A YANKEE EXPEDIENT

[Original]
Allen Igelhart, after being graduated at one of the first medical schools in the United States, took up bacteriology as a study, for he was rich, and, after absorbing what was known about germs at home, decided to go to Berlin and learn what was known in the land of Koch, Virchow and other renowned original hunters for the tiny enemy of man and beast. In the midst of his investigations the panic of 1893 came on and swept away every vestige of his fortune.

Dr. Igelhart was as cool headed a man as ever America produced. On learning of his misfortune he filled a pipe, placed his heels on the table and calmly considered what to do. He had not even the means to go home; besides, he had not finished his studies in the German field of bacilli. What could be done? The doctor thought all day and as the evening was coming on took his heels from the table, knocked the ashes from his pipe and muttered to himself, "I'll try it."

Arranging himself in evening dress, he sallied forth to a cafe patronized by the higher class of Berliners and where were often to be found sprigs of the nobility. Casting a glance over the dining room as he entered, he espied the young Count Heinemann, an officer of the Garde du Corps, sitting at a table dining with several companions. Dr. Igelhart chose a table near to this young man and ordered his dinner. While he was waiting for it he amused himself watching the men at the adjoining table and listening to their conversation. Indeed, so pronounced was his ogling, especially at the count, that the young officer scowled at him with the remark, "I will pig stick you!" an expression common in Germany to denote a ripping up of one's interior. This led to a cool retort from the doctor, who threw his card on the enemy's table and left the room.

At midnight Prince Almehach, representing Count Heinemann, called at Dr. Igelhart's rooms and was informed that the doctor was not at home. The prince called again at 9 o'clock and was informed that the doctor could not be seen before 10. At 10 the call was repeated, and the prince was admitted and shown into an anteroom full of people waiting. He demanded to see the doctor at once and attempted to force his way through a door to an adjoining apartment, but was kept in check by a stout Irishman, who wore the doctor's livery that morning for the first time. The prince seated himself and waited, nervously twirling his mustache, while patient after patient was admitted to the doctor's office. Meanwhile, glaring about the anteroom, the prince saw the doctor's framed medical diplomas and letters from the most celebrated bacteriologists. When he had had enough, he noted that the waiting patients were mostly of them known to him.

It was 12 o'clock when the doctor finally entered the room with Prince Almehach's card in his hand and, rushing up to his "secret transparency," burst forth: "Ah, prince, pardon this unfortunate blunder! This stupid son of Erin should have given me your card at once. Instead of that, he placed it on a side table. I perceived it only a moment ago when I went there to get an instrument. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Schifter entertained with a six o'clock dinner on Monday in honor of Mrs. Kline, covers being laid for twenty, and Mr. and Mrs. Sam Sutter entertained a number of their friends in honor of Mrs. Kline, who has been their guest for the past week.

Mt. Vernon Cooper Works.

The Mt. Vernon Banner says that it is more than probable that extensive additions will be made to the Cooper works next spring. The fine new foundry is to be enlarged. In its present position, it is too small to furnish an output equal to the capacity of the new machine shop. An addition is to be built just west of the present building, and connected to it, 180 feet long, exactly similar in style to the present building.

HOAR'S PROPOSITION

Held to Be a Reflection On the Philippine Commission.

STIRS UP DEBATE IN THE SENATE.

Ex-Confederate Veterans and Their Adhesion to the Soldiers' Homes Reciprocally Favorable With Cuba Delegation to King Edward's Coronation—Other Washington News.

Washington, Jan. 15.—For the first time this session the Philippine question was touched upon in the senate. The lively interest taken indicates that it will occupy the attention of the upper branch of congress for some time when the tariff bill is reported. The Philippines were the subject of an address by Mr. Hoar (Mass.), who spoke on his resolution providing for the appointment of the senate committee to investigate the administration of those islands. Mr. Hoar spoke at some length regarding the unreliability of statements which have been made from time to time regarding the situation in the Philippines and the causes which led to the outbreak. Mr. Lodge, Mr. Hoar's colleague, said he regarded the resolution as a reflection on the Philippine commission, of which he was chairman, and the necessity for the latter would cease were this resolution to be adopted. His committee, he said, was perfectly able to handle any investigation which might be conducted. Mr. Carmack (Dem.) agreed with him. The discussion was leading rapidly to an opening up of the whole Philippine question, when it was agreed that the resolution should go over. Mr. Mason (Ills.) made a speech in favor of reciprocity with Cuba, and discussed the protective policy generally.

Senator McEnery reported favorably from the committee on naval affairs the bill giving to the United States the use of devices invented and patented by naval officers while in the public service. Senator Hansbrough presented an amendment to the Philippine tariff bill admitting free of duty hemp grown in the Philippines, and relieving it from the export duty charged in the Philippines when shipped to the United States.

Debate on Pension Bill.

Debate on the pension appropriation bill was continued in the house and much of the time was devoted to the consideration of the proposition by Mr. Rixey (Va.) to open the doors of the soldiers' homes to ex-Confederate veterans. Two notable speeches were made in support of the proposition, one by Mr. Gardner (Rep., Mich.) and another by Mr. DeArmond (Dem., Mo.). Mr. DeArmond's eloquence aroused both sides of the house. The Republicans, with the exception of Mr. Gardner, took no part in the discussion of the Rixey suggestion, which met with much opposition on the Democratic side on the ground that it was utterly impracticable. Mr. Lamb (Va.) read a number of telegrams from prominent ex-Confederates of Richmond protesting against the bill.

Representative H. C. Smith (Mich.) introduced a joint resolution for a constitutional amendment empowering congress to define the qualifications of electors for members of congress and requiring that these qualifications shall be uniform throughout the states. The purpose of the amendment is to prevent the disfranchisement of voters at congressional elections. Representative Tawney (Minn.) introduced a measure in line with suggestions in a report by Ambassador Choate to prevent shipping masters from including in bills of lading certain lighterage and barge charges which have grown up by custom at large shipping points abroad, particularly on the Thames.

Panama Canal.

Washington, Jan. 15.—The house Nicaragua canal bill was considered by the senate committee on inter-oceanic canals, but action was deferred in order to permit further investigation of the proposition made by the Panama Canal company. The motion for this postponement was made by Senator Mitchell. It provides for meeting next Friday, and instructed Senator Morgan, as chairman of the committee, to confer in the meantime with the president for the purpose of ascertaining where the Panama proposition had been received by the isthmian canal commission, and in case it had been received, to ascertain from the chairman of the canal commission what time will be necessary for the commission to prepare a report upon the proposition.

Reception to Schley.

Knoxville, Jan. 15.—The chamber of commerce arranged its program of reception to Admiral Schley, who will visit Knoxville Feb. 5 and 6. The principal features will be a parade on the morning of the 5th, a public reception later and a banquet at night. On the second day the admiral and party will be driven to the birthplace of Admiral Farragut, and at night another reception will be rendered the distinguished guest of the Cumberland club. The local chapter Daughters of the Revolution will entertain Mrs. Schley, and while she is here will unveil a tablet erected at the home of William Blount, the first governor of Tennessee.

Child's Awful Disease.

Wichita, Kan., Jan. 15.—Nellie Cornilsen, the 11-year-old daughter of George Cornilsen, a laborer, cut the throat of her 2-year-old sister, Laura, in a stable. The child died afterward. Her father's razor was the weapon used. No motive was apparent.

A carnival of splendor, surrounding the realms of laughter and melody properly describes the notable musical opera "King Dodo," announced for a visit to this city at the Auditorium tonight. The book is the work of Mr. Frank Pixley, the well known Chicago librettist, and the music has been provided by Gustav Luders, whose name has become familiar through its connection with "The Burgoonster" and many popular musical creations during the past few years. "King Dodo" was first disclosed to public view in Chicago last spring, and to the surprise even to the management continued to regale residents of the Illinois metropolis for a period of five months with uninterrupted success. The presentation is under the direction of Mr. Henry W. Savage, associated with high-class operatic offerings in the larger cities for some years past, and this particular effort is said to surpass in every respect all of the important productions credited to his management. The piece abounds in the brightest sort of comedy, and is set in a musical frame of rare excellence. The complete production is promised for this city, including 60 people and a special orchestra, and the scenic adornment, which is declared to be a very elaborate description, will all be seen here. "King Dodo" is an operatic creation of a very high order, and that money has been lavished without stint upon the production. The engagement in Chicago far outstripped in success and duration of time anything recorded in that city's theatricals, and this fact alone should be a guarantee of the superior excellence of the attraction.

Pain is nature's signal whereby she warns man of approaching danger. Few diseases are so dreadfully fatal as disorders of the kidneys and few are accompanied by more severe pains and discomorts.

One of the most common symptoms of kidney disease is the smarting, scalding sensation when passing water which is likely to come very frequently and at inconveniences. Then there is the dull, heavy aching in the small of the back and down the limbs.

When these pains are accompanied by deposits in the urine after it has stood for twenty-four hours you may be sure that you are a victim of kidney disease and should not lose a single day in securing the world's greatest kidney cure—Dr. A. W. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

MR. PARRILL

IN CHARGE OF PAN HANDLE FREIGHT OFFICE

Mr. Parrill in Carnegie, Pa.—Webster Paul Leaves to Join Mr. Parrill in Pennsylvania.

Mr. O. C. Parrill of Washington, Pa., has assumed his duties as Pan Handle freight agent, vice W. H. Parrill, resigned.

Mr. Parrill is a middle-aged man and an old and trusted employee of the company, who is thoroughly familiar with the business, and undoubtedly will fill his new position with credit.

At present there will be no change in the office or working force, nor in the present business methods of the freight office.

Mr. W. H. Parrill who is now in Carnegie, Pa., is connected with a real estate and land improvement company at a large salary. Mrs. Parrill and family will move to Pennsylvania in the spring.

Mr. Webster Paul, who has been employed in the freight house for the past several years, has been granted an extended leave of absence, and will start tomorrow to join Mr. Parrill at Carnegie, with whom he has a position during the term of his leave.

Mr. Paul will take with him two teams of fine draft horses and seven wagons which he purchased in Licking county for use by the real estate company. Mr. Paul has been a faithful and conscientious employee of the company and his selection for this new position by Mr. Parrill with whom he has been associated, is in the nature of a promotion, which is a reward of merit.

THE PERIOD OF DANGER.

During the recent trial of a suit to collect a medical fee a witness was put on the stand to prove the correctness of the physician's bill.

The man was asked by counsel for the defense whether the doctor did not make several visits after the patient was out of danger.

"No," was the reply. "I considered the patient in danger so long as the doctor continued his visits."

WHITING.

All whittings are made from chalk. The more common preparations sometimes contain considerable gritty matter, which scratches highly polished surfaces. These coarse particles may be removed in this manner: Mix the whitening with water to paste and then add water until it is very thin. Strain through cheesecloth and let the strained mixture settle. Pour off the water and dry the whitening.

THE QUAGMIRE

[Copyright, 1901, by C. B. Lewis.]

During the last year of my Uncle William's life he came into possession of the horse Jimmy Star, that afterward became known to fame as the fastest pacer in the west. This was over thirty years ago, and Jimmy had won only a few scrub races when my uncle bought him and was not yet four years old. Uncle William, as well as many others, saw in him future possibilities, but when the husband died the widow would neither allow Jimmy to race again nor sell him. He was used with other horses on the farm and might have lived and died in front of the plow but for a queer incident.

After uncle's death I went to live with Aunt Mary, being then a lad of fourteen. The horse had developed an ugly disposition, and the hired man had almost become afraid of him. He took to me at once, for some unknown reason, and thereafter no one else dared enter his stall. It turned out into the field for a run, no other hand could catch him. Many and many a night I used to slip out of bed after the house was asleep and take Jimmy out and send him over the meadow or the highway at his best speed, and he seemed to enjoy it as much as I did. It was one of these nights when I had him out on the highway that I passed and repassed two strangers in a buggy. They were evidently amazed at the pacer's gait and stopped me to inquire all about him. Next morning they offered Aunt Mary $50 more than anybody else ever had, though some one was always trying to tempt her. She refused to sell. I think she somehow felt that Jimmy was a bond between her and the dead. The figures were increased by $50, but she was obstinate.

The men went away disappointed, but from a remark I accidentally overheard I became suspicious that they meant to have the horse whether or no and intended stealing him. This was in summer, and for three or four nights after that I slept in the barn. Nothing happened, and the strangers passed on out of sight. It was fortnight later that I woke up one night at midnight and heard Jimmy squeal and kick. Without waiting to dress or alarm the house I climbed out of my open window to the roof of the shed and dropped to the ground and ran to the barn. My idea was that the horse had got tangled up in his halter, but no sooner had I entered that barn than a hand clutched my neck and a hoarse voice exclaimed:

"Now, boy, if you utter one loud word I'll be the death of you in a minute!"

There were two men there with a dark lantern, and they were two strangers. They had been working to get Jimmy out of his stall and lead him off, but he had kept them off with his heels. I was ordered to bring him out of his stall, and when the man let go of my neck he covered me with a pistol. Had I been a man instead of a boy I should have obeyed orders. The fellows had hard, determined faces, and they would have thought nothing of knocking me on the head. Under my guidance the horse backed out quietly enough, and I was ordered to lead him out of a back door. The fellows had saddle horses waiting there. They had come across the fields from highway a mile to the west and intended going back that way. When Jimmy was clear of the barn, the man who had done all the talking said to me:

"Now get on his back and come with us, and if you try to play any tricks I'll put a bullet through you!" I dared not say a word in reply. As we started across the meadow they took their places on each side of me. I was riding bareback and had only a halter, and we had not gone ten rods before Jimmy got the idea that it was to be a race and started off. The meadow was a field of thirty acres, with a creek meandering through it, and at one point in the bed of this creek was a small but dangerous quagmire. Whenever we had live stock pasturing there we put up a temporary fence at the spot. It so happened that Jimmy headed straight for this spot, though I did not notice it at the time. He shot off like an arrow, and the two men put their horses to a gallop and tried to grab his head. He paced right away from them, even as I pulled my hardest, and as he reached the creek he gathered his legs under him and made a jump that few horses will ever equal. It has gone down in history with his name, as it deserved to do. His amazing leap just cleared the quagmire, and we were hardly over before I heard the two following horses come down into it with a great splash. Jimmy continued on to the fence and then turned and headed back for the barn, and I could not stop him until we reached it. Then I slipped off his back and ran to the house and raised an alarm, but it was quarter of an hour before the hired man turned out. Then we reached the quagmire to find that both horses had already been sucked down out of sight, while the two men showed only their heads and shoulders. They raved and cursed and begged for help, and we ran for ropes and fence rails. We probably lost valuable minutes in our confusion, for before we could extend help the fellows had been drawn out of sight beneath the treacherous ooze. In the morning we got help and set up a pair of shears and a tackle over the spot, and after many trials our big hook caught the body of one of the horses. It took the strength of a yoke of oxen and sixteen men to overcome the suction and lift it out, and then we found nothing by which the identity of the men could be traced.

Delegates to Edward's Coronation.

Washington, Jan. 15.—Secretary of State Hay announced the names of the following persons who are to be special representatives of the United States government at the coronation of King Edward Special ambassador, Whitelaw Reid of New York; representative of the United States army, General James H. Wilson of Delaware; representative of the United States navy, Captain Charles E. Clark, commander of the battleship Oregon during the American-Spanish war and now governor of the naval yard at Philadelphia. There are to be three secretaries, as follows: J. P. Morgan, Jr., son of J. Pierpont Morgan of New York; Edmund Lincoln Bassett, a barrister of New York, and William Wetmore, son of Senator Wetmore of Rhode Island.

For Consumptives.
Colorado Springs, Jan. 15.—General William J. Palmer has announced his intention of giving 100 acres of land and $50,000 to establish a semi-philanthropic sanitarium in Colorado Springs for consumptives, the institution to cost in all $250,000. The remainder of the money is to be raised by subscription. A company will be incorporated soon to carry out the project.

Bank Robbed.

Guthrie, Okla., Jan. 15.—The People's bank at North Enid was robbed of $2,000. The burglars blew the safe open with dynamite. There is no clew to the identity of the robbers.

Delegation Withdrawn.

City of Mexico, Jan. 15.—The Chilean delegation received a cablegram from Venezuelan foreign office announcing that it had acceded to Chile's request in withdrawing the Venezuelan delegation from the pan-American conference. This is a punishment procured by Chile upon the Venezuelan delegation for adhering to the compulsory arbitration plan, which is so distasteful to the Chileans.

British Will Retaliate.
London, Jan. 15.—At the cabinet council it was determined that steps should be taken to prevent the ruin of the West Indies. "We understand this to mean," says The Daily Mail, "that the British delegates will be able to announce at the Brussels conference that unless sugar bounties are abolished, Great Britain will be prepared to impose a countervailing duty on bounty-produced sugar."

Jealous Husband Breaks Loose.

Muncie, Ind., Jan. 15.—Charles Pitts of Yorktown followed his 18-year-old wife, Dora Pittser, from Daleville to Muncie, and while drunk and crazed with jealousy shot her five times, killing her instantly. The killing was done on his back and come with us, and if you try to play any tricks I'll put a bullet through you!"

I dared not say a word in reply. As we started across the meadow they took their places on each side of me. I was riding bareback and had only a halter, and we had not gone ten rods before Jimmy got the idea that it was to be a race and started off.

The meadow was a field of thirty acres, with a creek meandering through it, and at one point in the bed of this creek was a small but dangerous quagmire.

Whenever we had live stock pasturing there we put up a temporary fence at the spot. It so happened that Jimmy headed straight for this spot, though I did not notice it at the time. He shot off like an arrow, and the two men put their horses to a gallop and tried to grab his head.

He paced right away from them, even as I pulled my hardest, and as he reached the creek he gathered his legs under him and made a jump that few horses will ever equal. It has gone down in history with his name, as it deserved to do.

His amazing leap just cleared the quagmire, and we were hardly over before I heard the two following horses come down into it with a great splash.

Jimmy continued on to the fence and then turned and headed back for the barn, and I could not stop him until we reached it.

Then I slipped off his back and ran to the house and raised an alarm, but it was quarter of an hour before the hired man turned out.

Then we reached the quagmire to find that both horses had already been sucked down out of sight, while the two men showed only their heads and shoulders.

They raved and cursed and begged for help, and we ran for ropes and fence rails.

We probably lost valuable minutes in our confusion, for before we could extend help the fellows had been drawn out of sight beneath the treacherous ooze.

In the morning we got help and set up a pair of shears and a tackle over the spot, and after many trials our big hook caught the body of one of the horses.

It took the strength of a yoke of oxen and sixteen men to overcome the suction and lift it out, and then we found nothing by which the identity of the men could be traced.

A GLIMPSE OF NIAGARA IN WINTER—SCENE ON GOAT ISLAND.

The many thousands of persons who visited Niagara last summer, may be interested to know that in winter the mighty falls are as picturesque as in summer, if not even more so. During cold weather the number of visitors is less.

Frost works wonders with the mists which rise from the foot of the falls.

Lovely Goat Island, with its profuse shrubbery and its winding paths in staircases, is now sheeted in transparent coats of mail. The ice bridge in the gorge below the falls formed early this month and has been crossed by hundreds of daring tourists.

Experiences of the Celebrated Bandmaster in England.

KEPT UP ALL NIGHT BY THE KING

Musician Tells How His Band Was Treated In Edward VII's Buffet Car on the Way to Sandringham and Back Again to London—Queen Liked Ragtime Tunes Best.

Free and Clarke were the first two rescuers to get into the car jammed with maimed, dead and dying. Acting spokesman, Freed described some of the scenes of the wreck as follows:

"The first unfortunate we found was Peter A. Murphy, and he has got more real courage and nerve than any man I ever saw. Both of his legs and arms were broken, he seemed to be hurt internally, and blood was streaming from a dozen cuts. He was pinned hanging half out of one of the windows. His mangled legs were held in a wedge of tons of stuff, his arms were powerless, and he couldn't move. He was the first man that I saw, and he was the last sufferer removed from the wreck. But in all that time he never made a whimper and was calm and considerate of others from first to last.

"We chopped our way to him, and as soon as we found that we couldn't get him out for some time we fastened a rope under his armpits and hoisted him up into an easier position.

"All that he said to us was, 'I would like you to take me out as soon as you can, as the pain is very great.'

"A special train was in waiting. Together with the royal party, many members of the nobility went along.

That train was certainly an indication of England's democracy. After we had been out of London for three minutes you couldn't have told a bandman from a knight of the Garter.

"Let me tell you how King Edward kept my band out until 3 o'clock in the morning," said Mr. Sousa to a reporter for the Philadelphia Press. "That's a nice thing for a king to do, isn't it? Well, you see, we met King Edward and Queen Alexandra in London on Dec. 1. The king had arranged with me to hold a concert at Sandringham palace on that day, as it was the fifty-seventh birthday of Queen Alexandra.

"A special train was in waiting. Together with the royal party, many members of the nobility went along.

That train was certainly an indication of England's democracy. After we had been out of London for three minutes you couldn't have told a bandman from a knight of the Garter.

"One of the main features of the special train was the buffet car. That was the reason why the king of England kept his band out until 3 a. m. It was certainly a feast that they had in store for us. I don't suppose you could mention a wine that wasn't there. The musicians held in well, though, on the trip, because they felt that they were representing America, but King Edward kept them eating and drinking. Say, he's a jolly fellow!

"I was very much worried, but when I arrived at Sandringham I found that the band was still intact. Our programme was true American from the start to finish. I had determined that I would let the king see that we had good native music.

"Of course we had to play 'God Save the King,' because that is required at all court entertainments. But we eased our consciences by playing it over again under the title of 'America,' and do you know the king never betrayed the slightest sign that he noticed that the tunes were the same.

"Little Prince Edward of York wanted to come to the concert, but I didn't have the honor of playing to him, as I had my nurse objected. The little fellow made a noise and went away crying that if he couldn't have some played on his phonograph. Later I found that while I was holding my concert the boy was having one by himself up stairs.

"I never felt so much at home in all my life at a concert. The king made me feel at ease. Everything was informal. The chairs of the royal members of the party and those of the nobility were placed in artistic confusion, and in a gallery"—here Mr. Sousa used a term which must be bad form at a court—"and in a gallery there was a gong of court attaches.

"All the music seemed to take with the king. The queen and all the other royal ladies seemed to like the ragtime best. They clapped like giddy gods when I played 'Whistling Rufus.'

IN OLDEN TIMES.

People overlooked the importance of permanently beneficial effects and were satisfied with transient action;
but now that it is generally known that Syrup of Figs will permanently overcome habitual constipation, well-informed people will not buy other laxatives, which act for a time, but usually injure the system. Buy the genuine, made by the California Fig Syrup Company.

JERSEY.

The residence of F. E. Harrison burned on Friday about noon. They succeeded in saving nearly all the household goods, but all the clothing of the members of the family, except what they had on their backs, was consumed. The house was insured for $1,000. C. E. Osborn and W. H.
Ruckman, who were boarding in the house at the time of the fire, each lost fifteen dollars in the fire. Mr. Harrison has moved his family into the house on Mr. Reussner's farm.

Howard Smith of Huntington, W.
Va., was here Sunday calling on friends.

Mr. and Mrs. O. A. Pierson went to Columbus Monday to attend the inauguration of Governor Nash.

Kent Meredith of Columbus spent Sunday with his father, S. E. Mer-

the Newark Coal company of Licking county. The capital stock of the new company is $4,000, and the officers are W. H. Woody, president; John Miller treasurer; John H. Shimmel, superintendent. The company has purchased a mine at Cannaville, and has secured 65 acres of good coal land containing a four foot vein of coal, No. 6. They will take possession on January 16, and the business of the company will be transacted in Newark.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Pierson went to Columbus Monday to attend the

BADLY HURT

Brakeman Wm. Huntsberry Meets
With a Serious Accident on B.
& O. Near Mansfield.

B. & O. brakeman William Hunts-berry, single who lives at 53 South Second street, met with a serious accident on the Lake Erie division, about ½ of a mile west of Mansfield at 5:20 o'clock Tuesday evening.

Huntsberry was braking for conductor A. M. Shrigley on fast freight No. 98, and in climbing over the tender to the cab of the engine, he missed his footing and fell to the ground. He sustained severe injuries to the hips and spine, besides bruises and probably internal injuries. He was taken to Lexington, from which place he telephoned for Dr. D. M. Smith to come up, as he was seriously injured.
Dr. Smith went up on a freight train about 7:30 o'clock.

An Indication of Nervous Trouble.

A headache is simply an indication that some part of the body is deranged, usually the stomach or nervous system. Clinic Headache Waters cure by relieving those conditions. Never fail. Try them and be convinced. 10 cents at Hall's drug store. They are absolutely harmless. Don't accept a substitute.

Scaffold Broke.

Chicago, Jan. 15.—Two men were instantly killed and a third seriously injured by the breaking of a scaffold in the Radite elevator. The men were iron workers and were busy inside a steel grain bin, doing work called "bolting up." One of the men heard a creaking of the ropes and fearing that the scaffold would fall, shouted a warning. His companions jumped for the ropes, but too late. The dead:
Matthew Martin, Patrick Hanrahan.
The injured: Frank Hallenberg, burned in sliding down rope.

Robbers Work in Vain.

Carbondale, Ills., Jan. 15.—A bold but unsuccessful attempt at bank robbery occurred at Colden, eight miles south of this city. Nine men bound and gagged the night marshal of the village and took him into the Bank of Colden, when they attempted to open the safe. He was placed in the front office and the robbers drilled the door open. They worked diligently until near daylight, but were unable to get into the inner vault before dawn, when they fled without ceremony. They secured no money.

Metcalf Must Explain.

Washington, Jan. 15.—The senate subcommittee considering the charges against Wilder S. Metcalf, nominated for pension agent at Topeka, Kan., decided that the charges were of such a character as to necessitate an explanation from Metcalf, and he has been telegraphed to come to Washington.
Metcalf is accused of shooting a Philippine prisoner while an officer of the Twenty-ninth Kansas volunteers.
